DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 24-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen (DE 44 45 204 A1) in view of Krizman (USPN 5,829,316).

Chen discloses a first and second handlebar riser (20); upper handlebar structure to allow selective rotation; a vehicle connecting structure to allow for selective eccentric rotation (see fig. 6); a cylindrical projection (41) extending perpendicularly from each handle bar riser; indentation (21) to accept the handlebars;

Chen does not disclose a unitary handlebar; a separate upper clamp portion that is configured to be secured to the upper surface of the handlebar riser; the separate upper clamp portion of each handlebar riser subsequently secured to the handlebar riser; the riser body having a length that is greater than the diameter of the handlebar.

Krizman shows a curved unitary handlebar (2) a separate upper clamp portion that is configured to be secured to the upper surface of the handlebar riser; the separate upper clamp portion of each handlebar riser subsequently secured to the handlebar riser (see fig. 2).

To modify the apparatus of Chen so as to provide a unitary handlebar would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made in view of the teachings of Krizman that such an arrangement improves the stability of the steering apparatus.

To modify the apparatus of Chen so as to a separate upper clamp would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made in view of the teachings of Krizman that such an arrangement improves the assembly and maintenance of the handlebars.

It would have been an obvious matter to select the length of the riser such that it is greater than the diameter of the handlebar, since such a modification would have involved a mere change in size of a component. A change in size is generally recognized as being within the level of ordinary skill in the art.

Response to Arguments

3. Applicant's arguments with respect to claim 23 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.

Conclusion

4. This is an RCE of applicant's earlier Application No. 10/007,475. All claims are drawn to the same invention claimed in the earlier application and could have been finally rejected on the grounds and art of record in the next Office action if they had been entered in the earlier application. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL even though it is a first action in this case. See MPEP § 706.07(b). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no, however, event will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
